Several Points in Arkansas Are Flooded

EL DORADO (UP)—The 14 inches of rain which pelted El Dorado in a 24-hour period this weekend caused $75,000 to $100,000 damage to the city's streets and sewers, Mayor W. M. McKinney estimated.

He called on Congressman Owen Harris for federal aid, and the Fourth District Representative said he would ask for help today.

The waters caused damage to county roads and bridges estimated by County Judge Frank Hudson at upward of $60,000.

From midnight Friday to midnight Sunday, a total of 14.19 inches of rain fell in El Dorado, according to an unofficial reading.

At Crossett, an unofficial reading there listed 11.56 inches of rain from 5 p. m. Thursday to 5 p. m. Sunday. More rain fell in the High Court Upholds Tax on Advertising

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Supreme Court today dismissed an appeal by the New Yorker magazine against a New York City tax on advertising revenue.

The court said the case did not raise a "substantial federal issue."

Time Inc. and the Hearst Corp., which publish several magazines, had supported the New Yorker's appeal. They also said the Cowles magazines were directly affected by the case.

The tax is applied on gross receipts from advertising, except the portion solicited by out-of-state offices. The New Yorker objected because allowance was not made for its out-of-state activities and expenses.

In one of its briefest "decision Mondays," the court also:

Ruled unanimously that a dispute over Panama Canal tolls is to "cloudy" and "wide open" for the courts to step in at this stage. The decision reversed a ruling by the 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals, which ordered a 25 per cent reduction in tolls. The government had said it would lose 10 million dollars a year if the lower court order were upheld.

Struck down a Denver Union Stockyard regulation denying services to agencies which solicit business in Colorado for other yards. Justice William O. Douglas, speaking for the six-man majority, said, "The case is as simple, to us, as that of a utility that refuses to sell any power to a customer if the customer buys any power from a competitor."

Cotton Meet Tuesday at City Hall

All cotton farmers are invited by Hempstead County Farm Bureau to attend a cotton farm program meeting Tuesday night, April 29, at 8:00 in the county courtroom. The purpose of the meeting is to review and to recommend a plan for cotton for 1959 that will be a part of a long range cotton program.

R. E. Garrett, a member of the Arkansas Farm Bureau State Committee, and N. B. Coleman, president of the Hempstead County Farm Bureau, announce the Tuesday night meeting as one of a series expected to be held in all cotton producing counties. No definite plan for cotton after 1958 is now available that is acceptable by most cotton areas. Mr. Garrett attended a State Farm Bureau Crops Committee meeting in Little Rock last Tuesday where plans were made for the Arkansas meeting this week.

Tuesday night the general cotton situation and the major provisions of legislation affecting cotton will be reviewed. As a new approach is thought to be needed at this time some facts will be presented that will suggest legislation that should be acted upon in 1958.

Mr. Garrett in discussing need for decisions by cotton producers now said the minimum acreage of about 175 million provision expires with 1958. A provision that protects the small acreage allotments also expires this year. Approximately 75 per cent of cotton allotments are 15 acres or less therefore small allotments should be of interest to most producers. There are many major provisions to be considered Tuesday night at 8 o'clock.

All Around Town

By The Star Staff

Dewey Hendrix who announced his intention earlier to run for Sheriff of Hempstead, today pulled out of the race only two days before the filing deadline. He had his doubts about withdrawing. After much thought and consideration, he decided not to pursue further his candidacy for Sheriff of Hempstead County. "This decision was reached because I am unable to obtain a leave of absence from my present employment and therefore could not conduct the kind of personal and thorough campaign I want to make," he said to all my friends for their interest and support, please accept my deep and sincere appreciation.

State Police said all highways are passable in this area although it was slowed somewhat Saturday night near Fulton. Officers had to throw up a barricade to slow down motorists and keep them from crashing into nearly a foot of water that covered the highway. However, all traffic was able to get through.

Union Pledges Help to Write New Labor Law

By UNITED PRESS

The AFL-CIO pledged senate Democratic leaders today that it would help write a new labor law at this session to check corruption and racketeering in unions.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas read the pledge to the Senate as the chamber pressed toward passage of a bill to regulate health, welfare and pension funds.

Republican Leader William F. Knowland has been trying, without success, to convert the measure into a general labor reform bill on grounds the Democratic leadership wants to sidetrack all major labor legislation in an election year.

The AFL-CIO pledge reiterated the big labor organization's opposition to amending the welfare fund bill but said it would cooperate.

Bankers Advise Slow in Fight of Recession

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Presidents of the 12 Federal Reserve banks agree with President Eisenhower that Congress may start a new spiral of inflation if it does "too much" too soon.

They said "quite moderate" federal action might be all that is necessary to end the slump.

The bank heads generally endorsed the President's position that the nation should wait and see what happens in coming weeks before cutting taxes or embarking on massive public works programs.

They were interviewed in a survey conducted by the Senate Finance Committee, headed by Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.). The committee, which is conducting a general investigation of the economy, made the survey results public Sunday night.

Byrd said the questionnaire was prepared several months ago before the business slump had reached present proportions and that it primarily involved long-range economic problems. But he said the comments on current problems made it "even more valuable."

Other economic developments:

The Council of State Chambers of Commerce attacked a Democratic-sponsored bill to extend federal money to states for expanded unemployment benefits as a "dilemma" that would lead to "fraud and malingering." It said in a statement there was less need for such action now than in the 1930-50 and 1954 recessions.

Albert M. Cole, federal housing administrator, predicted on the ABC-TV program "Celebrity Parade" that housing would lead the economy out of the slump. He said an expected increase of some 100,000 private housing starts this year would have a snowballing effect on the economy.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.) proposed a 250-million-dollar federal loan program for construction of college classrooms, laboratories and libraries. He said in a statement that he and 11 other senators would introduce a bill to establish a program parallel to the existing college housing loan system.

District Court Upholds Integration at Central; Lemley Delays Hearing

Hope Judge Says Petition 'Too Indefinite'

By PHIL NEWMAN

United Press Staff Correspondent

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Federal Judge Harry J. Lemley of Hope today set for June 2 a hearing on the Little Rock school board's petition to delay the start of integration while evicting the petition as "too indefinite" on a number of points.

The board's strongly-worded petition was filed Feb. 20 and asked the U.S. district court to define the meaning of "deliberate speed" in the U.S. Supreme Court's original 1954 integration decision.

Judge Lemley called upon the school board to prove the allegations contained in the petition "are true and that a situation exists which calls for and justifies the relief sought."

Judge Lemley was appointed by Judge Archibald K. Gardner, of Port Huron, S.D., chief judge of the Eighth Judicial Circuit, to hear the case, replacing Judge Ronald N. Davies of Fargo, N.D.

The school board's petition said that "existing pupil unrest, teacher unrest and parent unrest... makes it difficult for the district to maintain a satisfactory education program."

School's Burden

But today Judge Lemley, who read a prepared statement setting out the procedure to be followed in the case, said the burden to prove the allegations in the petition "is upon the school board."

Judge Lemley quoted from a 1957 decision of the Fifth circuit that the "federal courts are not school boards; they are not prepared to take over the administration of the public schools of the several states; nor can they place themselves in the positions of censors over administration of the schools by the duly appointed and qualified officials thereof, to whose judgment and good faith must be left."

Judge Lemley said the petition did not indicate "a desire on the part of the board to formulate a new plan or definitely to modify the present plan, except with respect to the commencing day."

He suggested the petition "be amended so as to show whether the board desires time within which to reconsider the plan or whether it simply desires a 'moratorium' or 'cooling period.'"

Petition indefinite

The judge also said the petition was "too indefinite with respect to length of time for which a postponement is sought. He said he did not know "and I am not sure anyone knows" — when the concept of "all deliberate speed" will

Auto Crashes Into Station at Washington

An auto driven by Willie Junior Ogden, Negro, went out of control and crashed into Hulse's Station at Washington Saturday night resulting in two persons being injured and considerable property damage.

State Policeman Travis Ward said Ogden suffered severe bruises and one of five others in the auto, Eddie J. Langston, suffered a broken leg and a back injury. The rest escaped unhurt.

Officer Ward said the auto knocked over a gasoline pump and a post embedded in concrete and damaged the front of the service station building. There was no estimate as to the damage. Ogden was charged with reckless driving. The injured were brought to a Hope hospital by a Herndon-Cornelius ambulance.

Break-in, Theft Bring Arrests

Three Negroes listed as Noble Scott Jr., Charles William Dixon and Robert C. C. Brown were arrested Sunday and charged with breaking into a warehouse in a Negro section of the city.

City Police also reported that Henry Turner, Negro, had been charged with petty larceny following the theft Sunday of a tire and wheel from an auto owned by Jack Cannon.

3 Test Cases by Faubus and Others Ousted

ST. LOUIS (UP)—The U.S. Court of Appeals today upheld the ruling of the Federal District Court decision in favor of integration of public schools in Little Rock, Ark.

There were three cases involved in the court test and in each instance the opinion written by Appeals Judge John B. Sanborn upheld the lower court's ruling.

The court dismissed suits by Gov. Orval Faubus and others against government action to enforce integration at Central High School.

Faubus' appeal from an injunction against his use of Arkansas National Guard troops to bar Negro students from the school was rejected, as were similar actions appealed by Mrs. Clyde Thomas and Mrs. Margaret Jackson.

The women are members of the pro-segregation League of Central High School Mothers.

In each case, the rulings of U.S. District Judge Ronald Davies were upheld by the three-judge Appeals Court.

Until now, as dusk was falling swiftly over the rangeland, four horsemen appeared in the distance, riding swiftly toward the ranch. Lily became alert and as the horsemen neared she got up from her chair and stepped out to the ground.

Paul Partridge, who was watching from the middle of the ranch yard, sent her a look. "Relax," he said. "It's only your husband—and the boss."

The horsemen pulled up near the corral; they were Alderton, Denver and two of Alderton's cowboys, brought along as bodyguards. Sheriff Moon and Partridge joined the newcomers by the corral and there was a considerable discussion there before Alderton, Denver and the Sheriff crossed to the house.

"Good evening, my dear," Alderton said mockingly. "You're looking very well."

"She's lookin' all right," chuckled Paul Partridge. "She's been sittin' there all afternoon, lookin'—who for, I dunno."

"Her old beau," Alderton said nastily. "Toms Weber, alias Tom Farko, the outlaw."

Tom Weber had spent most of the afternoon in the vicinity of Lobo Dam and had even spent an hour or so sitting on a rocky slope some half mile from the dam, watching it. Late in the afternoon, Weber finally left the vicinity of the dam.

He was a mile from the ranch when he stopped and sat on the black for a long moment, looking through the darkness. There was a pinpoint of light that indicated the ranch house, but Weber did not like it. There should have been more lights. Lights in the bunkhouse, two or three in the ranch house.

He dismounted and taking down the cowboy's rope from the saddle pommel tied a short hobble on the black's front legs, to the snorting disgust of the horse.

Two hundred yards from the ranch house he got down to his hands and knees.

After a few minutes he became aware of horses in the yard, several of them tied to the corral poles. Normally the horses would have been inside the corral.

Weber knew then that there were strangers at the ranch and strangers could only mean enemies. He turned and crawled away from the ranch.

An hour later, having again hobbled his horse at a safe distance, Weber repeated a similar advance upon his own ranch.

He spent an hour reconnoitering it, had a narrow escape from discovery by an armed sentinel and worked his way back to his horse staked out on Lobo land.

He knew then that he had been on the right track all of the time. The rustling, the political maneuvering of Mike Denver, the carefully nurtured "feud" between ranchers and farmers was all part of Denver's vast overall scheme to win, by conquest, Lobo Valley.

The farmer's began to gather as early as two o'clock in the morning. Some came on foot, some rode horses and still others drove up in buckboards and farm wagons. By three o'clock more than 30 had assembled and were drinking hot coffee prepared by a number of women who had come to Luzzumple's farm with their husbands. By 9:30 a force of more than 50 had gathered. A few more farmers struggled in late.

Dawn was breaking when the cavalcade turned right in the Barkerville road and halted along the frontage of the old Wooster ranch.

Charlie Weber, flanked by Kuzumple, Novak and two other farmers, stepped away from the main body on the road. They crossed onto Weber land and stopped.

"Hello, the camp!" Weber called. For a moment there was no

Sanford Is Winner in Louisiana

LAFAYETTE, La. (UP)—Jay Hebert of Sanford, Fla., coasted one stroke off the pace on the first three rounds of the $15,000 Lafayette Open golf tournament before steaming through a four-under-par final round for a 67 and a 273 total to win the tournament Sunday.

Hebert shot five strokes ahead of a field dotted with seven golfers who held or shared the tournament lead during the first three rounds.

Gusty winds and the high humidity of the Louisiana lowlands took a toll on Leo Biagetti, of St. Paul, Minn., and Bill Collins of Gossinger, N.Y., and other touring PGA pros.

Biagetti and Collins shared the lead at the end of 54 holes at 265, but the former faltered with a two-over-par 73 on the final round and finished in a tie for second with Bob Rosburg of Palo Alto, Calif.

Collins zoomed to a 75 on the final round for a tie for sixth, and Don January, of Eastland, Tex., who held the lead at the halfway mark, zoomed to a 284 final score for a tie for 11th.

Hebert collected $2,000 first money, besting his tournament winnings this year to an unofficial $15,427 in 10 tournaments.

New Statewide Association Organized

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—A statewide association of parents of mentally retarded children was organized here Sunday with Haskell Jones of Texarkana elected as chairman.

A total of 361 parents attended the meeting.

They heard A. Nils Florenta of Little Rock, Children's Colony board chairman, report that construction on the school will start next Monday and groundbreaking ceremonies would probably be about May 27.

Dr. Gunnar Dybwad, National Association for Retarded Children executive director, cautioned the parents not to rely on the Colony to take care of all the mentally retarded children in the state. He said the Colony will be able to handle only about 256, or about one-tenth of the mentally retarded children in Arkansas.

He suggested community projects be started to take care of children who do not need treatment at the colony. Among those could be, he said, day nurseries, special education classes, and summer camps.

Dybwad presented a national charter in the organization to Robert Young, who represented a group from Russellville. He said it was the first in the state and means the national group now has a chapter in each of the states.

Jones appointed a steering committee to draw up a constitution and bylaws. He also said the committee should plan to affiliate with the national association as soon as possible.

be clarified. Judge Lemley said the petition contained "numerous allegations seeking to fix the blame for the difficulties that the board has encountered in connection with its plan." But the judge said he did not believe the allegations were "really germane to the issues now before the court."

"The board believes these allegations to be true," said Judge Lemley's statement. "Otherwise it would not have filed this petition. But the burden is upon the board to prove those allegations are true and that a situation exists which calls for and justifies the relief sought."

Judge Lemley said that when the board asked a stay of Judge Ronald N. Davies' order of Sept. 3, 1957, ordering immediate integration, which was denied, "a different set of circumstances may have prevailed by reason of the fact the Negro students were not then actually attending classes at Central High School."

The judge said the school board would have 10 days to amend their petition "along the lines I have mentioned and to respond to the plaintiffs' motion to dismiss. He said the plaintiffs would have 10 days thereafter to respond, on the merits to the school board's amended petition."

Both sides have until May 23 to file pre-trial briefs. The judge suggested that "any other interested parties, agencies or organizations may file amicus curiae (Friend of the court) briefs."

He warned that "if the board fails to make a case, either from a legal or a factual standpoint, its petition will have to be denied."

ale with Congress. "In enactment of constructive, maturely considered legislation" to meet union abuses which unions themselves cannot correct.

Elsewhere in Congress:

Appropriations: The Senate Appropriations Committee approved a $488,939,950 bill to finance programs of the Interior Department and related agencies in fiscal year 1959. This was $75,704,350 more than voted by the House and $74,455,350 more than President Eisenhower requested.

Space: James A. Van Allen, director of all U.S. satellite experiments, urged the House Space Committee to give scientific exploration of space priority over military programs. He said that subordinating the military program "would emphasize before the world our primary interest in peaceful exploration of space."

He said this in turn, would spur international cooperation.

Defense: Charles A. Coolidge, defense department lawyer, conceded before the House Armed Services Committee that Marine Corps amphibious forces could be abolished under President Eisenhower's defense reorganization plan. He said this could be done if the forces were found to be "overlapping or inefficient."

Wase Freese, President David J. McDonald of the United Steel

Workers, told the House Banking Committee he was opposed to a wage freeze in the steel industry as an anti-inflation measure. He blamed steel and other major industries for treating inflation by "rigging" prices.

Minerals: Secretary of the Interior Fred A. Seaton urged a Senate Interior Minerals subcommittee to approve a five-year price support program for copper, lead, zinc, tungsten and acid-grade fluorspar.

The community of Wesson, south of El Dorado was cut off from the rest of the area Saturday evening when streams and creeks went out of their banks. A county road from El Dorado to the community of several hundred persons was opened up Sunday for emergency traffic.

Urges Russia to Join Arms Control Plan

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UP)—President Eisenhower today urged Russia to join in a military control inspection system for the Arctic zone as "a significant first step" to help "reduce tensions and 'the mutual fears of surprise attack.'"

In a letter to Russian Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, the President also renewed his appeal that Russia agree to East-West technical studies on control or suspension of nuclear tests and general disarmament.

Eisenhower noted that the United States had proposed in the United Nations Security Council that there be set up an international inspection system for the Arctic zone.

"Your support of this proposal and subsequent cooperation would help to achieve a significant first step," the President said.

"It would help reduce tensions. It would contribute to an increase of confidence among states, and help to reduce the mutual fears of surprise attack."

Declaring that the United States "is determined that we will ultimately reach an agreement on disarmament," the President noted that he had proposed the technical studies, in an April 8 letter to Khrushchev.

"You say that we must first reach a final political agreement before it is worthwhile even to initiate the technical studies," Eisenhower said. "But such studies would, in fact, facilitate the reaching of the final agreement you state you desire."

Rain Causes Floods Over Several States

By UNITED PRESS

Flooding rains, damaging hail storms and tornadoes ripped the South in the heart of a widespread storm system ranging from the Gulf Coast northeastward to New England.

Texas, hardest hit by the weekend storm, counted at least three dead in accidents blamed on the weather.

More than 65 Texas families were forced to flee their flood-washed or threatened homes.

Rain Sunday and early today extended from southern New England into South Carolina, west into the Ohio Valley and southeast through Tennessee, north to Georgia and Alabama and through Mississippi, Louisiana and eastern Texas.

Apparent tornadoes flicked from black clouds in Texas, Mississippi and Kansas.

Tornado winds ripped the roof from a school near McKinney, Tex., Sunday, accompanied by a hail storm that damaged homes in the area. Officials estimated storm damage at McKinney and nearby Frisco at $175,000.

A twister also damaged several homes near Vicksburg, Miss., Sunday, and others struck near McDonald and Colby in northwestern Kansas, causing minor damage.

Drenching rains sent the Trinity River at Dallas to more than four feet above flood stage at 34.6 feet, but metropolitan Dallas was in no immediate danger. However, about 28 families were moved out of their homes in the outskirts of Dallas.

Elsewhere, about 30 families were forced to flee their homes in a suburb of Fort Worth when Fossil Creek threatened to flood their homes Saturday and about a dozen fled at Pittsburg, Tex., hit by a 10-inch deluge of rain Sunday.

Dead in the Texas storm were a Negro couple, who drowned Saturday when their car was washed into a creek near Dallas, and a woman killed in a traffic crash during a driving rain near Fort Worth.

DOROTHY DIX

Wedded Woes Will Come From Flouting Parents

Dear Dorothy Dix: Two boys want to marry me. Alvin lives in another state and if I marry him and move to his home town, my parents say they'll disown me. Bruce is a boy who lives in my own city. My folks like him very much and promise to help us get established if I marry him. The trouble is I don't know which I prefer I sort of lean towards Alvin but just because I don't want my parents to dictate my future. Which do you advise me to marry?

Dear Cleo: Neither. When a girl doesn't know whether she loves a man or not, it's a sure sign that she doesn't. When you are really in love, it shows all over. The reason for your slight inclination toward Alvin is stupid. Don't take a chance on ruining your life just to prove you can be independent of your parents. They are very wrong too in trying to dictate your future by bribing you with promises to help. When you fall in love, marry the man you love and set up your own home, if necessary.

Dear Dorothy Dix: What do you do with people who must be handled with kid gloves? I have a friend who boasts she never takes anything from anybody. Everyone is uncomfortable around her for she takes offense at the least thing. She even made trouble at school because her daughter's name was misspelled in the school paper.

Dear Mimi: There is absolutely nothing you can do to cure people like this; the only remedy is to stay clear of them. Of course, when the "sensitive" one is a relative, that's not so easy, but if it's only a friend (and how did you get friendly with such an unpleasant person in the first place?), forget her. Dominating people aren't worth the time to phone them.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Recently in your column you gave the address of a Bachelors Association for bachelors and bachelorettes. I contacted the organization and received tickets to a party. When I got there I discovered there were a number of divorced people present, but almost no bachelors. They charged $1.50, so I'm convinced it's nothing but a money-making scheme.

A. V. You never got the address from this column I'm afraid. I don't see how I could set against recommending any group that doesn't have a lively reputation. That's why I so strongly urge people to attend church-sponsored affairs. The 'V' also runs dances for young people. These affairs don't make the extravagant claims that lure people to this other type of organization, but they offer a chance to meet solid young people. Try them.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm about to lose four or five girl friends on account of a boy. Every one of these girls has, at one time or another, been Nick's steady. Now he's going with me and the girls won't have anything to do with me. Should I break off with the boy or lose the girls?

WONDERING
Dear Wondering: Better join the girls and be No. 6 in their group of Nicks ex-girl friends. You will be a member sooner or later; better make it sooner.

Blasts Rock Negro School in Florida

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UP)—Explosions rocked a Jewish center and a Negro school within a period of three to four minutes early today, apparently set off by a group identifying itself as "the Confederate underground."

The blast broke out windows at the rear of a combination synagogue and community center in an old residential section of the city. It partially buckled the metal side of a nearby garage and broke out windows in an apartment house.

The other charge was set off in an arcade entrance way at James Weldon Johnson Junior High School, about four miles from the synagogue. Police said there was evidence of a connection between the two bombings.

It was the third time this year that Jewish installations have been bombed in the South. In this latest incident, as in earlier dynamite attacks at Miami and Nashville, Tenn., there were anonymous telephoned threats of further violence against Jews and integrationists.

A former newsmen living in Jacksonville, who asked that his identity be withheld, said he received a call shortly after midnight from a man identifying himself as "General Ponce de Leon". The caller, apparently reading the statement, was quoted as saying: "This is the Confederate Underground. We have just blown up a Jewish center of integration. Every segregationist in the South must go free. All integration must stop. Jews will not be allowed in Florida, except at Miami Beach. Jews outside of Miami Beach will die."

Police said so far as could be learned no one was killed or injured by the blasts. But they said several members of the Jewish community received anonymous calls threatening Jews and organizations promoting racial mixing.

School principal James Green and Financial Director L. O. Calhoun estimated damage to the school at about $2,000.

Air Force Sends Mouse Into Space

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Air Force sent a mouse into space in the nose cone of a souped-up missile fired last Wednesday at Cape Canaveral, Fla., but the mouse and the nose cone are missing, it was learned Sunday night.

The animal apparently was expected to survive the experience, providing the nose cone re-entered the earth's atmosphere without burning up and was retrieved.

The cone was never recovered after the test firing of a combination of the Air Force Thor and a modified second-stage of the Navy's Vanguard satellite rocket.

The Air Force disclosed meantime that it is developing a bomber that will be able to circle the earth at a speed of 17,000 miles an hour—either with or without a crew.

Assistant Air Force Secretary Richard E. Horner discussed the planned aircraft in previously secret testimony before the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee, which made it public Sunday.

He said the plane will be called the "Dyna-soar," short for "dynamic soarer," and will use the "boost glide" principle.

FANSIO TO SEE AUTO
NEW YORK (UP)—Juan Manuel Fansio of Argentina planned to leave today for Dayton, Ohio, to inspect an auto he might drive in the Indianapolis 500-mile race Memorial Day.

Fansio said he wanted to "get the feel" of the larger and more powerful American cars before deciding whether to drive at Indianapolis.

In the glowing memory of her Channel tests, it isn't often remembered that Miss Ederle was one of our great competitors. She held more than 80 world marks in the Indianapolis 500-mile race Memorial Day in 1924 and broke seven world records in one race when she was only 18.

You wonder why they didn't screen the picture long ago.

Miss Ederle Tells About Channel Swim

TODAY'S SPORT PARADE
(Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.)
By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) — Terence Ederle, looking forward to the filming of her legendary 1926 conquest of the English Channel, disclosed today how a betting couple "fix" prevented her from completing her history-making swim a year earlier.

Miss Ederle was only 19, when, on Aug. 6, 1926, she waded ashore in the shadow of the white cliffs of Dover as the first woman ever to conquer the Channel. Only five men had swum it before her, but she fought through a raging storm to break the men's record by two hours with a time of 14 hours, 30 minutes.

Yet, the jovial, 51-year-old "Trudy" reveals almost reluctantly, she would have accomplished the feat a year earlier except for some dark and devious work at the crossroads.

"I should have done it a year earlier in my first try," she recalls. "I had been in the water only eight and one-half hours and was only six miles off the English coast — breaking all records — when the tug captain called to a man swimming near me that I was collapsing. I wasn't, but when he touched me, I was disqualified."

Od's Against Her
"We found out later that the odds were 6 to 1 against me doing it, and $2,000,000 had been wagered that I wouldn't do it," she adds. "There was something wrong somewhere, but there was no way of creating a mess."

So Trudy returned the next year and this time she pulled it off, wearing "the first bikini bathing suit ever made," to become one of the most famous women of the Golden '20s. When she returned home, Miss Ederle was greeted with a record ticker tape reception by 2,000,000 New Yorkers.

Capitalizing on her fame, she was earning $8,000 weekly in vaudeville when she fell on the stairs at a friend's home in 1933 and injured her spine. For four and one-half years she was in a cast and 19 specialists told her she would never walk again.

"Then I heard that there would be a swimming feature in the World's Fair," she says. "It was the incentive I needed. It felt like a knife was being driven into my spine when I moved but I learned to walk and swim all over again and earned a place in Billy Rose's Aquadance."

Other Tribulation
A fighting champion, as she proved in the storm-tossed waters of the English Channel, Trudy had other tribulations to conquer. She had begun to grow deaf while in vaudeville and now was "deaf" without a hearing aid. The troubles have tinged her dark, bobbed hair with gray but she still is a bubbly, bright-eyed woman with a hearty laugh who is ever ready to extend a helping hand to others.

One of her best contributions is teaching swimming to the children at the Lexington School for the Deaf. And she delights in the way their eyes light up when she jumps in with that old gasp and speed.

In the glowing memory of her Channel tests, it isn't often remembered that Miss Ederle was one of our great competitors. She held more than 80 world marks in the Indianapolis 500-mile race Memorial Day in 1924 and broke seven world records in one race when she was only 18.

What Happened to Frankie Gastine?

By UNITED PRESS
Frankie Gastine, a major leaguer for a dozen years starting in 1935, spent the first 10 years with the Pittsburgh Pirates and usually was the league's best hitter until the Fourth of July.

Great defensively, he had a fine batting eye, too, but despite vitamin pills and occasional rest he couldn't maintain his batting pace all year long. He wound up with a lifetime average of .265 with 297 in 1947 his career high.

Whatever happened to Frankie Gastine now 38, the popular ex-Pirate is the popular host at his own restaurant hard by Forbes Field, Pittsburgh.

That's what it says across the top of the full-color advertisements which boast the state's tourist advantages in national magazines.

Of course, that's no revelation to the lucky anglers of the Wonder State, but those who should know say the fishing should be even better in the coming summer.

"The best in at least five years," said Gus Albright of the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission.

Why should fishing be any better this year?

"Well, for one thing," said Albright, last year's big rains have filled up all the ponds and creeks and there's plenty of oxygen and organisms in the water to support more fish this year."

Albright also said conditions for hatching were better than in former years.

"You can look in large and small bodies of water most any place in the state and see big schools of small fish," he said.

"And a lot of the fish spawned last season are getting ready to be caught—or will be by this summer."

Previous Problem
Albright said that in the past few years there had been a problem of creeks and small ponds drying up or reaching the point where the oxygen content of the water was so low most of the fish died or moved to "big waters."

"We don't anticipate any such thing this year with all the water from last year's rains," he said.

"There are places in the state where the rivers and creeks have been out of their banks and standing in woods for months."

The Game and Fish Commission has raised the daily limit on some species of fish this season. Angler can now take 20 crappie, 50 bream, 10 black bass and 15 white bass. There's no limit on catfish—either bullheads or channel cat. In the trout department, six is the limit.

And speaking of trout, the state is adding more water for the game beauties all the time. Right now there are three main regions where Rainbow trout may be caught.

A fourth is in the experimental stage and fish biologists are optimistic about it.

Trout Planted
That's below Blainey Dam at Lake Ouchitoch. There the Game and Fish Commission has planted Rainbows to see if the water is of the right temperature and contains the right organisms to support the fish.

Normally, it takes water in the neighborhood of 50 degrees to provide a healthful habitat for trout. That's why biologists figure the Western Arkansas waters will succeed. Recently, water from the depths of the high lake has been "generated," or allowed to flow out of the dam at a high speed. That lowered the temperature of the water below the dam and added more oxygen, another trout essential.

The other main trout waters are about 40 to 50 miles along the North Fork and White Rivers in Northern Arkansas and in parts of the Spring River in the Mississippi River valley.

The largest trout hatchery west of the Mississippi River, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Norfolk Hatchery near Mountain Home, is completing its first year of operation. Most of the fingerlings hatched there are used to stock Arkansas waters.

Some German Brown
Most trout in Arkansas waters are the popular Rainbow, although the federal agency has stocked some streams with German Brown trout, too.

Fish in the state, Arkansas can venture forth anytime. And from what the state's sporting goods handlers say, a lot are already venturing.

"We've sold more boats and motors so far this year than we sold last year," said one dealer.

WHY DO YOU READ THE NEWSPAPER?

COPYRIGHT 1937, BUREAU OF ADVERTISING OF THE AMERICAN NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS ASSOCIATION, INC.

*"I go over the ads every day...it's part of reading the newspaper"

Ask ten different people why they read the daily newspaper and you'll probably get ten different answers. That's because the newspaper offers so much under one roof to interest people—local and world-wide news, sports, comics, fashions, gardening, home planning, business news, teen-age columns, human interest pictures, entertainment news, and much more.

Newspaper reading is a local habit done on a national scale. And one habit common to almost all newspaper readers is skipping the paper. As the lady in our illustration says, "It's part of reading the newspaper." That is one of the fundamental reasons why an all time high of almost 57,000,000 newspapers are eagerly bought—and read—every day.

The newspaper is a basic need in peoples' lives and is naturally a basic selling tool for all advertisers—national, regional, local—from big manufacturers to merchants on Main Street.

Is it your basic advertising medium?

* One of hundreds of statements from "The Fictions of Newspapers for Their Readers", a study conducted by Social Research, Inc., for the entire newspaper industry.
